

Experiencing North Indian

Classical Vocal Music and Dance

Monday, October 14 at 3pm

California State University Los Angeles
University-Student Union Theater
5151 State University Dr,
Los Angeles, CA 90032

North Indian Classical music a.k.a. Hindustani Classical music originated thousand of years back and has its roots in Vedas, oldest Hindu scriptures. Hindustani Classical music is an art form that has been continually changing and evolving, the most significant change being assimilation with Persian music around 400 years ago. In the quest of understanding and appreciating such rich ancient art form, this two-hour session will include live performances by an eminent classical vocalist from India, a gifted young dancer, and a promising vocalist from Southern California along with talented accompanists. Performances will be followed by an interactive audience Q&A.

- Vocal performance by renowned North Indian Classical singer - Pandit Sandip Ghosh
- Kathak - North Indian Classical dance form by Anvita Kohli accompanied by Dayita Datta on Vocal
- Interactive audience Q&A session
- Vocal and dance performances will be accompanied by JyotiPrakas on Tabla (percussion) and Pankaj Mishra on Sarangi (string instrument)

Pandit Sandip Ghosh

Free Admission

Dayita Datta

Pankaj Mishra

JyotiPrakas

Anvita Kohli